

In a piece for National Review Online, Galen Institute president Grace-Marie Turner describes (<http://www.nationalreview.com/critical-condition/257313/rights-you-will-have-obamacare-grace-marie-turner>) 15 rights that you will have under ObamaCare when the full impact hits, such as the right to lose your job and the right to have the government decide what health insurance you must have. Everyone will have the right to pay more for health insurance as the costs soar from what will surely be a heavily loaded list of benefits that your policy must cover. Or you have the right to ask Congress to start over again and get health reform right.

***

Doug Holtz-Eakin, Joe Antos, and Jim Capretta write ([http://online.wsj.com/article/SB10001424052748703954004576089702354292100.html?mod=WSJ\_Opinion\_LEFTTo pOpinion](http://online.wsj.com/article/SB10001424052748703954004576089702354292100.html?mod=WSJ_Opinion_LEFTTo pOpinion)) in The Wall Street Journal Online that repealing the health overhaul law won't add to the deficit and is instead the logical first step toward restoring fiscal sanity. And 200 economists and other experts released an open letter (http://americanactionforum.org/sites/default/files/Final%20Open%20Letter\_Impact%20of%20Healthcare%20Repeal\_182010.pdf) to Congress this morning supporting full repeal of the health overhaul law. The signers include 2 former CBO directors, 3 senior White House OMB officials, and 7 senior White House economic officials.